

Some helpful information re: downloading audio files.

If you are using a PC

- The easiest way to download an MP3 is to hover over the link, and right-click with your mouse. On the menu that appears, click “Save Link As” or “Save Target As”. Select the location on your computer that you want it to save to when the dialog box comes up, then click “Save”.
- If you’ve clicked the link so that it opens in a new window of your browser, wait for it to load, and then from the File menu of your browser, select “Save As” or “Save Page As”. Select the location on your computer that you want it to save to when the dialog box comes up, then click “Save”.

If you are using a Mac

- In Safari, you don’t have the option to save the file from the page that contains the player. So what you’ll need to do is CTRL-click (hold down at the same time) on the mp3 link, and choose on the menu that pops up “Download Linked File As”. Select the location you want to save the file in the dialog box and click Save.
- For other browsers, the easiest way to download an MP3 is pretty much the same; hover over the link, and CTRL-click (at the same time). On the menu that appears, click “Save Link As” or “Save Target As”. Select the location on your computer that you want it to save to when the dialog box comes up, then click “Save”.
- If you’ve clicked the link so that it opens in a new window of your browser, wait for it to load, and then from the File menu of your browser, select “Save As” or “Save Page As”. Select the location on your computer that you want it to save to when the dialog box comes up, then click “Save”.
